COUNCIL TAKES FIRM STAND ON ASSESSMENTS

Votes Against Granting Reduction of Levies for Street Improvements

COURT ACTION REQUIRED

Only Two Councilmen Oppose Plan To Reject Applications from Property Owners

By a vote of two to five city council at its meeting last night turned thumbs down on requests for reductions in special improvement assessments and also took a definite stand on any requests that may be presented in the future.

"[illegible] this is the time we [illegible] council should take a definite stand in [illegible] Councilman Murphy [illegible] of council. "Let us definitely decide at this time if we are going to grant these reductions or if we will turn them all down regardless of circumstances which might accompany any case."

Councilman Mead who has consistently opposed the reduction of any special improvement assessment declared that if council granted the five requests then it will be flooded with similar requests for reductions from all quarters.

Others Ready

"If we grant these five requests I personally know of 10 property owners who will be before this body at the next meeting with similar requests," Mr Mead said.

"I do not believe in working a hardship on the owner of any property who might think he is being overcharged but I believe it is a question for the courts to decide," Mr Mead continued. He also questioned the legal right of council to make a reduction after the assessment has been certified to the county auditor.

Councilman Pretzman however took the stand that if the assessment was unreasonable it would profit council to settle with the property owner rather than allow it to be settled by the court, which might grant a greater reduction than would result if the matter was settled between council and the property owner.

"I believe the city would be saving money to settle these reductions out of court," Mr Pretzman said.

Councilman Schmidt who with Pretzman, voiced the only objection to having the reductions go into court ex

FESS SAYS RUMORS UNFOUNDED IN TALK

Attributes Publicity as Possible Successor to Coolidge to Newspaper Friendships

Xenia Aug 23—Senator S. D. Fess of Ohio regards as "unfounded" the rumors that the mantle of President Coolidge may fall upon his shoulders when the Republican party convention meets to select a candidate for president next year he told an audience of 2,000 here last night.

His utterance came at the outset of a speech to a civic gathering after he had been introduced by City Manager S. O. Hale as a possible Republican nominee for president.

The publicity he has received as a possible nominee the senator declared is due entirely to the friendship of Washington newspapermen.

Fess declared his judgment is that the next leader of his party is the man who is now president, but declared that was not the wish of Mr Coolidge who assured the Ohio senator, during the latter's recent visit to the Black Hills, that he was fully determined upon his course.

"Ten years is too long for any man to be president," Fess said Mr Coolidge told him. "People get tired of him. This is not a one-man country."

NORMAL TRUSTEES TO CONSIDER CHARGES

School Officials Hear 100 Accusations Against President of Institution

Cleveland Aug 23—Trustees of Kent State Normal College were to reconvene here today to consider charges of mismanagement against Dr David L. Anderson president of the school.

Despite statements from board members that a meeting here Monday was purely routine it was learned that the trustees before adjournment late yesterday had heard at least 100 charges filed by the college alumni against Anderson [illegible] phase of his administration. Most important among them were charges that Anderson had failed to preserve peace in the faculty and that he was extremely dictatorial.

Although board members here denied that Anderson was to be ousted press dispatches from Columbus Monday stated that friends of the Kent president were urging Governor Donahey to request the trustees to retain him.

Anderson has held office one year. During that period he has dismissed over a score of the faculty.

POLICE HUNTING SON OF MURDERED WOMAN

Body of Doctor's Wife Found in Shallow Grave at Home

Chicago Aug 23—A police dragnet was thrown out in Chicago and other Illinois points today for Harry Hill, 21, son of Mrs. Maryann Hill, whose apparently murdered body was found buried in a shallow grave in her Streator, Ill. home.

Mrs. Hill divorced wife of Dr. H. C. Hill prominent eye, ear and nose specialist had been dead several days and the decomposed condition of the body left authorities in doubt as to the cause of death.

Young Hill according to Streator authorities who were in Chicago today seeking to trace his movements, left Streator in a light car shortly after the body was discovered.

LITTLE HOPE HELD FOR MISSING FLIERS

Dole Entrants Last Seen Week Ago on Hop-Off for Honolulu

BULLETIN

Washington Aug 23—The navy department today ordered the light cruiser Omaha and 16 destroyers to join the search for the plane Dallas Spirit which has been missing since Friday when it attempted a non stop flight to Hawaii.

San Francisco Aug 23—Hope for the five missing Dole fliers and their two would-be rescuers, Capt. Billy Erwin and Alvin Eichwaldt had all but vanished with the coming of dawn today—one week after the ill-fated Golden Eagle and Miss Doran hopped off on their disastrous attempt to reach Honolulu.

Captain Erwin and Navigator Eichwaldt aboard the mercy plane, "Dallas Spirit," have been missing since Friday.

Not a single authentic clew as to the fate of the three planes and their seven occupants has been found, despite the fact that innumerable naval vessels, planes and fishing smacks have searched every mile of the great circle course between here and Hawaii.

Reluctantly friends of the missing fliers are resigning themselves to what seems the inevitable. Sympathy centers on Miss Mildred Doran, the 22 year old Flint, Mich., school teacher who was a passenger in the plane named for her, piloted by Auggy Pedlar and navigated by V. R. Knope. Others missing are Pilot Jack Frost and Navigator Gordon Scott of the Hearst monoplane Golden Eagle.

Despite the apparent futility of the search the navy will carry on until Thursday it was announced.

Specific Bequests Total $2,000,000; Nothing To Indicate Size of Estate

Mineola N Y Aug 23—The will of the late Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United Steel Corporation, was filed here today. There was nothing in the document or the accompanying petition to indicate the value of the estate as the specific bequests totaled more than $2,000,000.

The petition said the will disposed of personal property valued at more than $10,000 and real property valued at more than $10,000.

The will was filed for probate in the office of Probate Judge Leone D. Howell of Nassau County by Attorney Kenneth T. Halstead of New York City.

Historic Old Courthouse Bell To Ring Out Farewell At Salem Church Tonight

THE old courthouse bell, the first to be rung in the city of Marion will be heard for the last time at 7:30 o'clock tonight when it peals its farewell from the belfry of the Salem Evangelical Church, E. Church st., its abiding place for nearly half a century. It will be removed at an early date to make way for the remodeling and enlarging of the church which began today.

The old bell will not sound tonight as it did in the days of its youth when it summoned the citizens to funerals, fires, court, or called out the "boys of '61," because of a large crack in one side which has rendered it useless for the last seven or eight years. What disposition will be made of the bell has not been determined.

Bought in Pittsburgh

The bell was purchased in Pittsburgh, in 1839, with money subscribed by the civic spirited citizens. The three-weeks journey necessary for its transportation overland was fraught with the hardships of pioneer days and in many instances it was necessary to blaze a path for the wagon through the woods. Its purchase was prompted by the need of a bell for funerals, meetings and court purposes which had been felt for some time by the citizens of the village and when the commissioners declined to go the expense of purchasing one the people raised the money and bought it.

At this time a dollar was equal to twenty of the present time and many a contributor felt the loss of his donation. By agreement the bell was placed on the courthouse and was to be used by the several churches of the town, the public and county.

Among the contributors were Jacob "Papa" Dietrich, Mr Bennett who resided where the Uhler-Phillips Co. store is now located and James Reed. As Mr Dietrich, a member of the congregation of Salem Evangelical Church, was living at the time the bell was supplanted by a new one on the courthouse in 1887 it was given to the congregation.

The old bell rang out when the soldiers marched to the Spanish American war in 1898 and summoned the local boys to service in the World War. Because it was the oldest bell in the city it was accorded the distinction of being the first to sound the glad news of the signing of the Armistice. Its cracked notes clanged with the pealing of Marion's many beautiful church bells in celebrating the city's centennial in 1922 and tolled in sympathy at the news of the death of the late President Warren G. Harding. This was the last time the bell was rung.

The fate of the bell was of grave concern to its donors and history records their expression of a desire that it be kept as a relic of olden times. Their fear was that because of the city being in the newer section of the country where "reverence and history are comparatively unknown factors" the bell would be cast in the discard as soon as it became useless.

McKinlay had two 77s for a total of 154 with Dave Ward, Big Rapids Mich. in third place at 156. However most of the good ones including Bobby Jones and Watts Gunn were yet to be heard from at this point.

Doctor Near Contender

The one the gallery began to watch was Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland Ore. The good doctor taking no chances behind the 77 he posted yesterday suddenly ran amuck and was four under par for the first six holes with pars for the first three and birdies for the fourth and sixth [illegible].

Sandy Dean [illegible] with a 78 yesterday seemed well in the hunt today with a 40 for nine holes.

Leo Chase, Buffalo, was one of the few early starters to break 40. He turned for home in 38.

ASHLEY CAVE STORY BRANDED AS HOAX

State Mine Inspector Charges Geologist-Explorer Faked Disappearance

Nashville Tenn Aug 23—Lawrence A. Ashley's reported disappearance in Nickajack Cave and the claims of rescue workers were a hoax and a fraud perpetrated for publicity purposes [illegible] commission to route a road by the cave, an official report of State Mine Inspector O. P. Pile in the hands of Governor Austin Peay today declared.

Members of the rescue crews who claimed they penetrated unknown recesses of the cave in search of the geologist explorer returned with fabulous stories of the beautiful underground passages in efforts to attract tourists. The cave is only two miles in length, mostly full of rocks from falling roofs and most unattractive, Pile declared. He charged both Ashley and those who said they were seeking him with perpetrating a hoax.

Several newspaper correspondents were today planning to accompany Ashley over the route he claims to have traveled during the five days he was reported lost in the subterranean passages of Nickajack Cave.

BLOODHOUNDS USED IN SEARCH FOR GUNMAN

Posse of 100 Armed Men Hunt Through Swamp for Alleged Slayer

Mt Vernon Aug 23—Bloodhounds and a posse of 100 armed men led by Knox County deputy sheriffs today were searching a hundred acre swamp, at Fredericktown near here for the trail of Richard Cole alias Joseph Smith, alleged slayer of Harry Swank, 17, of Ankenytown.

Swank was killed, and Richard Roberts, 20 was shot Sunday night during an argument at Fredericktown. The alleged slayer fled after the shooting, and search for him was made Monday near Mt Gilead and at Fredericktown. The Mt Gilead search proved fruitless, and Monday night bloodhounds were brought from Pomeroy to scour the swamp where a man was reported hiding yesterday.

Roberts was discharged from Mercy Hospital here, late Monday and returned to his home at Newark.

BOY, MATCHES—FIRE

Combination Results in Blaze at Home on Bennett st. Today

A small boy and matches caused a $15 fire at the home of Harrison G. Bish 842 Bennett st. at 10 o'clock this morning. The child was playing upstairs and in some manner got possession of matches. He was amusing himself by striking the matches on a metal bed when one came in contact with the bed clothing.

His sister alarmed his mother who discovered the blaze and called the fire department. The blaze was extinguished by firemen from the central and No. 2 stations with a loss estimated at $15.

SPORADIC OUTBREAKS MARK PASSING OF RADICALS

Near Riots Quelled by Early Intervention of Police; One Alleged Rioter Under Arrest in Detroit Following Demonstration by 10,000 in Cadillac Square

Boston Aug 23—Sporadic outbreaks marked the passing from the earthly stage of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

In the city of Webster in Worcester county, [illegible] believed to be the work of a dynamiter, ripped up a piece of the sidewalk near the post office.

Several calls were answered by police in Boston. Mother Ella Reeves Bloor of Oakland, Calif., socialist was talking to a union meeting in the north end and went to a window to address a crowd of perhaps two thousand persons outside in the street. A squad of uniformed police forced their way into the hall. Mother Bloor was arrested, charged with inciting to riot. Another riot call was sounded when, upon her release on bail Mother Bloor returned to the union hall and began to speak to the crowd outside. The crowd was dispersed.

Miss Paula Halliday of Provincetown was arrested as a parade was being organized at the state house for a march to the state's prison. The protest parade was broken up.

DEMONSTRATION STAGED IN DETROIT

Detroit Aug 23—One alleged rioter is under arrest today and three policemen and a civilian are recovering from slight injuries suffered when police dispersed a gathering of 10,000 persons in Cadillac Square last night in a final protest against the electrocution of Sacco and Vanzetti.

George Moll, 20, was arrested after he is alleged to have struck an officer.

At the conclusion of the meeting the crowd surged toward city hall with cries of "life for Sacco and Vanzetti." In the battle waged by 250 policemen against the mob, Sergt. Edgar Lewis and Patrolman James W. Gill were injured slightly. A spectator, Barney Dienzo 42, was struck by a missile hurled by some member of the crowd. His injuries are not serious.

Shouts of assent rose when the orators urged a boycott of all Massachusetts products as a retaliation against the execution of the two radicals. Under plans being made all union labor in Detroit will be united in the proposed boycott.

Sing Red Anthem

Singing the "red" anthem a crowd of several hundred persons many carrying placards moved across the bridge from the city proper into the Charlestown district. Their objective was State Prison but a detour was under way to Bunker Hill when police descended on the marchers in Thompson Square. Foot and mounted police charged the parade whose ranks had been augmented by a throng of curious spectators along the route. In the crush under the elevated structure at Thompson Square 20 persons were arrested. They were charged with violating a city ordinance.

Marchers Routed

The plan had been for two lines, one from Essex-st., South End, and the other from the State House to meet at the foot of Bunker Hill monument. In the glare of the flood lights that play at night on the great granite shaft stretching into the dark sky, the Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers planned a "death watch." The watch was to be on soil where a century and a half ago General Warren waited until his men saw the whites of the eyes of the red coats. But Thompson Square was the nearest any of the protestors got to monument park.

Some time after the execution a crowd of several hundred persons in city square, Charlestown was broken up by police, who shoved the loiterers away to their homes.

Police had taken elaborate precautions to prevent bomb throwing or other violence but the great army of police and state troopers had little to do.

MAN KILLED IN DUEL WITH WIFE

New York Aug 23—Driven insane by the fate of Sacco and Vanzetti according to police Santo Carlino 27, attacked his wife with a table knife in their home in Brooklyn this morning and was stabbed to death in a duel which followed. The wife Amelia 23 was taken to Cumberland Hospital in a dying condition with 32 stab wounds. Police said she stabbed her husband 12 times with a carving knife in self defense.

A thrust through the heart killed Carlino.

Boston Aug 23—Sacco and Vanzetti are dead. But the hue and cry of their dramatic passing rang around the world today.

The end of the seven years fight for life by these convicted radicals—a fight unprecedented in American criminal procedure and unparalleled too in its effect on world opinion—came in the early hours of this morning in drab old Charlestown prison.

Whining singsong of an electric current whipped through their bodies and blotted out their lives while the guns of 2,000 police encircled them to make sure they did not escape Massachusetts justice.

Near Rioting

Nothing like it ever was witnessed in an American city. The streets of Boston and other cities saw marching and near rioting in sympathy with them. From Kamchatka to Rio the radicals of the world protested the innocence of the condemned men and demanded their liberation. In London, Paris, Berlin and Moscow there were riotous demonstrations against America—but they died just the same in grim Charlestown prison hard by the monument on Bunker Hill, and today their bodies lay on marble slabs in the North Grove mortuary. To the radicals of the world and to their sympathizers among the intellectuals Sacco and Vanzetti were symbols of legalistic and capitalistic oppression and martyrs to the cause of political liberalism.

To the law of Massachusetts stern and unyielding as the rock of Plymouth, they were a pair of anarchistic aliens who had perpetrated an unusually brutal crime in the murder of a factory paymaster and his guard at South Braintree and who for seven years have managed to escape paying the penalty.

Died as They Lived

They died as they lived—defiant, contemptuous of the "system" that took their lives, unrepentant, unorthodox, and protesting their innocence to the end. They went to the chair with their heads up, their tread firm, unafraid and with no benefit of clergy.

Sacco died almost with "long live anarchy" upon his lips. Vanzetti, older, more kindly, philosophical, proclaimed his innocence while seated in the chair, and was pronouncing his forgiveness of his enemies when the guards stepped back and signalled for the fatal current.

"I am innocent of all crime," said Vanzetti, without attempting theatrical gestures. "Not only of this one, but all."

He spoke simply in a quiet voice as if he had said "I am tired." He lay back quietly and waited for death.

Sacco Impetuous

Not so Sacco. Younger, more volatile and impetuous, his first cry upon entering the death chamber was "long live anarchy!" and his last, "farewell my mother!"

Preceding them to the chair was Celestino Madeiros a Portuguese bank bandit, who killed a cashier in Wrentham while in the act of holding up the place. Oddly enough Madeiros had confessed to the same murder for which Sacco and Vanzetti were executed and his confession exonerated the two radicals. But the law of Massachusetts refused to believe him.

Phlegmatic and alien seemingly indifferent to his fate, Madeiros had eaten everything that came his way during his long stay in the death house. He had eaten and slept the long days and nights away. He even had to be awakened three hours before his execution to be informed that this was his last night on earth. And having heard it, he turned over and was asleep again in five minutes. He marched stolidly to the chair and died without a murmur. Nobody pleaded or tossed bombs in his behalf.

Without Parallel

The scene at Charlestown prison probably was without parallel in American criminology.

Eight hundred police and state police, armed with riot guns, riot clubs and .45 automatics, encircled the old prison in a ring of steel.

Backing them up were machine guns mounted atop the walls. Powerful searchlights sprayed the adjacent streets to seek out possible trouble. For four blocks around the prison the streets were roped off and nobody was permitted to enter without a pass signed by Warden William Hendry, reinforced by a police permit.

Temporary Pressroom

Just off the main gate a temporary pressroom had been established with special wires leading to many cities, and in this restricted space three score perspiring reporters and telegraphers labored to inform the world as to how Sacco and Vanzetti died. The flash of their successive deaths was bulletined in London, Paris and other world capitals almost as soon as it was in New York and Chicago.

Several miles away, in a closely guarded office on the third floor of the capitol, sat Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, whose official duties for more than a month past have been largely confined to this world famous case. Grim faced and resolute the governor remained at his desk until 19 minutes past midnight. At that hour Madeiros was dead and Sacco was on his last short march to oblivion.

Governor Fuller heard all last minute pleas for respite from relatives of the

FIREMEN LOSE

Baseball Team Defeated by "Fresh Air" Boys at Kiwanis Camp

One of the most unusual sport events of the season took place at the Kiwanis Fresh Air camp on the Owens farm south of the city yesterday afternoon when a baseball team made up of firemen from the central station went down in defeat before the onslaught of a team of fresh air boys by a score of 13 to 10.

Charges of prejudice were made by the firemen against G. B. Illing who served as umpire and who presented the winners with a $2 ball as an award for their victory. It is not expected the charges will be taken before Commissioner K. M. Landis. The game was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators who said the 21 men showed their usual ability.

The Detroit Tigers yesterday afternoon smacked the Washington Senators for two more victories increasing their winning streak to 13 straights and strengthening their hold on second place in the American League.

We remember not so long ago when the Tigers were struggling around near the bottom of the league wondering what it was all about. Now look at 'em. And they're trimmin the best teams in the league. The Tigers have little chance of ever catching the New York Yanks but they can finish in second money.

Wheat Pools' Success Proves Value of Community Marketing

Busy elevators loaded freight cars and community threshing machines prove that the farmer can co-operate if he will.

WASHINGTON D C Aug 23—Co-operation between farmers? Impossible!

That was not so long ago. The mere suggestion that it might be reasonable to work out a system whereby the agriculturalists of the land could be brought together in amicable agreement one for their own pecuniary benefit was laughed at all through the nation.

Not so now. That farmers cooperative movements are based upon a sound foundation of practicability is testified to by hundreds of threshing machines long lines of freight cars and scores of elevators all engaged in the business of harvesting and getting it to market—on a co-operative basis.

According to figures compiled by the Co-operative Marketing Bureau of the Department of Agriculture there are today more than 4000 farmers elevators throughout the United States and their patrons number more than 500,000 farmers.

The bulk of these elevators as is to be expected, are to be found in the Middle West the great agricultural producing area of the country. They are most numerous in Illinois Iowa, Kansas Nebraska North Dakota, Minnesota South Dakota, Ohio and Missouri. Eastern Washington harbors a few co-operative warehouses which receive and market grain.

How greatly has grown the co-operative movement among the farmers in the matter of marketing their grain without the aid of the intermediary grain buyer is to be found in the number of wheat pools organized since 1920—the year from which dates all the present day hard times of the farmer. The total is 10. The first wheat pool association was formed in Washington the second in Idaho. Immediately following these associations were set up in Oregon Montana Oklahoma and Kansas. In the year 1922 Arizona California Colorado Nebraska North Dakota and Texas set up associations. South Dakota and Minnesota did not organize until 192[illegible] and the most recent grain association in the co-operative field The Central States Soft Wheat Growers Association did not come into existence until 1924.

The latest compiled statistical information on the volume of business handled by all co-operative grain marketing associations throughout the country reveals $[illegible] worth of business transacted for 520,000 members. The figures are for the fiscal year ending 1927. Those for 1926 have not as yet been compiled but it is understood that the total will top those of 1927 both as to business volume and farmers served.

63 PLAYGROUNDS

And All Are Crowded in Vermont With Boys and Girls

Montpelier Vt Aug 23—This state famous as the birthplace of President Calvin Coolidge and the exploits of the immortal Ethan Allen of Revolutionary days is rapidly becoming a summer playground for boys and girls.

A survey of the boys and girls camps in the state by the Vermont Chamber of Commerce has revealed that there are 63 of these health and pleasure abodes. These 63 camps represent an investment of more than a million dollars while an amount equal [illegible] that investment was spent last year [illegible] accommodations and instruction in the camps.

The value of the camps is exemplified by the situation in one town where it was found that the establishment of a camp had brought enough [illegible] summer residents to double the list of taxpayers and thus [illegible] the tax rate from nearly $4 to $1.[illegible]

The girls were in the house when I went in. It is lucky for me they stopped at the house. My mother made me take care of Annabelle Lee, so we took her to sand mountain, and with the sweat and sand and everything she looked like an Indian when I took her home. My mother blamed [illegible]

Hunts Cat for 40 Years; Now He Can't Find Buyer

W. I. Wheaton and his tri-colored tomcat, which ought to be worth $10,000—to somebody.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug 23—Sympathy is sought for W. I. Wheaton who spent 40 years of his life looking for a cat, found it, and now doesn't know what to do with it.

Phineas T. Barnum, circus man, practical joker, and exploiter of freaks of all sorts, was in his heyday when Wheaton's search began. Barnum, as the story is related to Wheaton, wanted to buy, for $10,000 cash, a cat of the male sex, with three distinct and different colors marked in its fur. The colors could be black, white and yellow, blue, pink and green, gray, purple and scarlet, or any other combination. That didn't matter. The important thing was that the cat must be a tom. No tabbies could qualify.

The catch is that while there are plenty of tri-colored tabbies roaming the alleys of the universe, three way pigmented toms are as rare as gold teeth in a hen's mouth.

Began Search at Ten

Wheaton was 10 years old when the tale of Mr. Barnum's $10,000 offer was first relayed to his eager ears. He made up his mind to find that cat. Following his ambition he took up the sea as a profession. Now he is first engineer on a steamship. He gets around. In Singapore and Sidney, in London and Liverpool, in Montreal and Melbourne, east and west, and north and south, W. I. Wheaton hunted the highways and the byways seeking one cat, tom, tri-colored.

He found what he wanted. A variegated feline crawled on board his ship in New York harbor one evening, woe begone, bedraggled — and female. Wheaton adopted the animal. A few weeks later she presented him with a litter of six kittens—and one of them was not only a tomcat, but marked distinctly with spots of black, brown and white fur.

Wheaton's 40 year search is ended, but P. T. Barnum is dead.

Where is there an energetic freak hunter who will pay W. I. Wheaton $10,000 for his three way colored cat?

CHAPLIN GOES BACK TO WORK

Studio Tent of "The Circus" Staked Out Again Following Divorce Settlement

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 23—The big studio tent of "The Circus," Charlie Chaplin's unfinished picture, was hoisted and staked out again today as the comedian, now a free man, prepared to resume his acting after an eight months' layoff. Lita Grey Chaplin received an interlocutory decree of divorce from Chaplin yesterday. The court ordered $825,000 upon her and her two small sons in a property settlement reached out of court.

Trust Fund

A trust fund of $200,000 for Sydney Earle, 18 months, and Charles Spencer Jr., 26 months, was included in the settlement. Mrs. Chaplin will have the babies' custody and will administer the trust fund on their behalf.

Although Chaplin himself was expected to go today to Catalina Island for a short rest, other members of the cast of "The Circus" were ordered to take up work at once on the unfinished comedy. Chaplin and his supporting players, including Merna Kennedy, leading lady, stopped work on the picture when his wife sued for divorce eight months ago.

Released Christmas

"The Circus" must be turned over to United Artists for Christmas release, Alfred Reeves manager of the Chaplin Studio, declared, and nothing will be permitted to delay it further.

With the general terms of the property settlement upon Lita Chaplin made public, speculation centered today upon details of the huge award. According to reports considered trustworthy, Mrs. Chaplin will receive $375,000 in cash. The remaining $250,000 will be paid over a three-year period, it was said, with four per cent interest accruing upon the deferred payments. The trust fund will be established within five years, it was reported. Until that time Chaplin will pay $1,000 a month for the care of the children.

In all, the divorce action is expected to cost the comedian well over $1,000,000, including such intangible losses as lost earning power during the past eight months. Not considering the loss of earning power or his own attorneys' fees, it was reported that Chaplin will pay approximately $950,000 for his freedom.

One of the greatest regrets of oncoming years are the moonlight nights, which somehow or other, one can't make the most of.

MAY ABOLISH COUNTY HOME

Franklin County Officials Consider Doing Away with Institution

The Franklin County Children's Home, which is under the management of Carl [illegible] Degel, former superintendent of the Marion County Home, may be abolished according to a plan outlined by officials in Columbus yesterday.

As a substitute arrangement it has been proposed to place the children in the private homes of Franklin County citizens, with the county paying for their board and lodgings.

The proposed new plan comes, it is reported, largely as the result of difficulties which have developed in recent years in operation of the county home. There have been frequent changes in management resulting from controversies and differences of opinion regarding operating policies.

Latest Controversy

Several months ago the latest trouble developed following the death of a child who had been a ward at the home. It was alleged that the child had not received proper treatment and following a thorough investigation several changes in methods of management were effected.

In final reports of the investigation Degel and his wife, who serves as matron in the home, were completely vindicated and exonerated from any responsibility in connection with alleged unsatisfactory conditions. Blame for alleged mistreatment of children was placed entirely upon several employes of the institution who were later dismissed from service.

NEW FINANCE PLAN STARTED

City Council Authorizes Notes for Part of Street Improvement Costs

Three notes to pay the property owners portion of the cost of constructing improvements on three streets were authorized by city council at its meeting last night. The notes, which run for a period of one year, are issued pending completion of the improvements when the exact cost of the projects will be known and bonds will be issued to take up the notes.

This method of paying the cost of improvements, adopted by council this year, prevents the issuance of bonds for a greater amount than will be needed as has been the case in the past when the cost was estimated. A corresponding reduction in interest charges will result.

The notes authorized by council last night were for part of the property owners portion of resurfacing Columbus-st from High-st to Davids-st in the sum of $9,000; all of the property owners portion of resurfacing Wildwood-ct from Prospect-st to the east terminus of the street in the sum of $1,800 and a part of the property owners portion of the cost of resurfacing Blaine-av in the sum of $1,100.

RESIDENTS SEEK NEW NAME FOR HENRY-ST

Petition Filed with Council To Designate Thoroughfare as Central-av

Along with the horse and buggy, corsets and high shoes, the good old substantial name of "Henry" is now threatened with the shelf. Twenty-eight residents of Henry-st in a petition presented to City Council at its meeting last night, asked that the name of Henry-st be changed to Central-av.

No reason is given for the change and it is assumed that good old Henry, which has been proudly borne by great men from Henry the Third down to Henry Ford, smacks of the old fashioned and jars on the aesthetic tastes of the residents of Henry-st. The petition was referred to the street and alley committee.

FUNERAL FOR INFANT

Funeral services for Gene Hudson Sinden, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Sinden, who died Sunday at his home in Mecker, were held there at 3 o'clock this afternoon with Dr. J. D. Corn Borer Patrol Record Shows Marion Is One of Principal Automobile Traffic Centers o Ohio

MARION is one of the chief centers of automobile traffic in Ohio.

Convincing proof of this is found in figures compiled by government employes who make up the corn borer guard patrol now on duty on eight of Marion County's main highways.

A summary of these figures made public today by M. H. Lichty, Bucyrus, who is in charge of the patrol, shows that during the first 15 days of August 46,525 motor cars traveled south over these eight highways. This would mean that traffic both ways over the roads was at least double the number of machines going south, or a total of 93,050.

The corn borer guards halt all automobiles going south across the border line of the borer quarantine area, the object being to prevent any corn from being transported into uninfested territory. An accurate account is kept of all machines stopped. No record is kept, however, of north-bound traffic.

Record for Day

By far the heaviest traffic is on the Marion-Prospect rd. Sunday, Lichty's record shows, 2,813 cars went south past the borer guard line on this highway. That was in a 24-hour period, making an average of more than 100 an hour.

The larger part of the traffic, the summary shows, is between 2 o'clock in the afternoon and 10 o'clock at night. [illegible] schedule night and day on the Marion-Prospect rd. and also on the [illegible]

The patrol is maintained [illegible] Sandusky and Richland rds, these being the main north and south traffic routes included among the eight under guard.

Sixteen hour patrols are in effect on the other routes. These are on to Mt. Victory and Delaware rds south of [illegible], the [illegible]-pk two miles south of [illegible], the Green Camp-pk four miles west of Marion and the [illegible]-pk five miles east of Marion.

The patrols will be maintained until after the close of the corn harvest season.

Corn Confiscated

Since the guard was established 23 and a half dozen ears of corn have been confiscated from automobiles stopped at the border line, Lichty stated today. All have been found in passenger machines, no attempts to make large shipments in trucks having been discovered.

Yesterday three dozen ears of corn were found in a tourist machine en route to Cincinnati. Two ears were found to be infested with borers, Lichty said.

In case one of these borers was male and the other female and had the pair reached their destination in Cincinnati, it might have resulted in infestation of the corn area there, Lichty said. A single pair of borers has a production capacity of 750 eggs in one season.

With infestation started at this point in southern Ohio, it would spread easily across the river into Kentucky, Lichty said.

Worth Entire Cost

"Should the Marion county guard [illegible] pair of borers from crossing the border, that alone will be worth the entire patrol [illegible] do no more than prevent this," Lichty declared.

In the 23 and one-half dozen ears confiscated thus far, eight ears have been found to be infested with borers.

Discovery of only two borers in the three dozen ears confiscated yesterday convinces Lichty that the eradication campaign in north Ohio has yielded gratifying results. Last year, he states, corn grown in the heaviest infested sections of northern Ohio showed an average of about 16 borers to three dozen ears. The corn found in the machine here yesterday had come from [illegible] of the chief borer centers of the state.

Extension Probable

Although Lichty has received no official notice of probable extension of the quarantine area, it has been [illegible] that all of Marion County and possibly several counties to the south will be included next year. Infestation, it was recently announced, has been found in Delaware, [illegible] and Franklin Counties. Scouts are now at work in this territory and are expected to report results of their [illegible].

Remember these FACTS when you trade-in your present car

YOU want full value for your present car, but most of all you want full new car value. It will therefore pay you to look beyond the trade-in offers and consider these basic facts:

1 Your present car has only one fundamental basis of value: i.e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

2 Your present car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.

4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

5 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your present car.

6 Remember that you are making a purchase—not a sale. You are buying a new car and simply using your present car as a credit against the new car's purchase price.

Stephenson Makes Public "Documents" In Indiana's Famous Ku Klux Scandal

Senator, Governor Jackson's $2,500 horse, inset of governor. The rider is unidentified.

XI

BY BONITA WITT

D. C. STEPHENSON, life prisoner who once boasted he controlled all of Indiana petitioned the governor he was attacking for a 90-day parole "to straighten out business affairs."

That petition declares that Stephenson "is the victim" of Hiram Wesley Evans, imperial wizard of the Klan. The petitioner, Stephenson, further avers that "Evans enlisted the aid and active connivance of certain politicians in the state of Indiana, promising to support such politicians in 1926 and 1928, provided such politicians would aid the said Evans against the petitioner."

His petition denied, and probably irked by the failure of anybody to pay any attention to his attacks, Stephenson asserted he had been "double-crossed" for the last time." He instructed one of his attorneys, Lloyd G. Hill, of Indianapolis, to turn over supposedly incriminating documents to two men—Thomas Adams, Vincennes, Ind., publisher, and the editor of an Indianapolis paper.

Had Fought Stephenson

Adams had been the first editor in the state to urge the arrest and conviction of Stephenson for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, who took poison following an attack by Stephenson. He had repeatedly tried to get statements from Stephenson at the state prison—but had been unsuccessful. The prisoner protested he was not permitted to talk.

Stephenson, always a master of the dramatic, chose now as his first alleged document to be revealed a check for $2,500, bearing his signature and made out to Governor Ed Jackson. Pinned to this check was a piece of white paper, bearing these words in Stephenson's hand writing: "This check is the first one-fourth of ten thousand dollars given Jackson personally for primary expenses."

Governor Jackson was out of the state at the time. When he returned he at first refused to be interviewed.

2 LAST STEVE

Sidelight on Governor

It is said of Governor Jackson in Indiana that he had consistently refused to criticize or answer his former friend. As a teacher of a Bible class for 20 years, he has taught the principle of never striking back. When his wife recovered from a serious illness last winter he attributed her convalescence to prayer.

In this instance, the clamor proved too much for the governor to remain silent. He declared the $2,500 check was in payment for a saddle horse and equipment. Senator was its name.

Senator, incidentally, choked to death on a corn cob. Stephenson had given it to a friend, Bela Schultze, of Laurel, Ind. When told that Stephenson had paid the governor $2,500 for the horse Schultze declared it "a bad bargain." He estimated that the animal had been worth $300.

Jackson's Statement

Governor Jackson, insisting, nevertheless, that the $2,500 check had been given for the horse and its equipment, issued a formal statement, saying:

"D. C. Stephenson is in prison for the murder of a young girl, and I never will be blackmailed into granting him his pardon."

Stephenson hesitated not a moment. He struck in a different direction. He ordered turned over to investigators a photostatic copy of an alleged agreement between Claude M. Worley, inspector of Indianapolis detectives, and Stephenson, agreeing to name certain persons for positions in the police department in return for Stephenson's aid in getting Worley appointed police chief.

Worley has denied knowledge of this agreement. And he offers as proof that he was not made police chief.

"Stephenson's documents are coming to light at last!" people exclaimed.

PLAN FOR PICNIC

Odd Fellow Lodges Prepare for County Event Saturday

Final arrangements for the Marion County Odd Fellows' picnic to be held at Garfield Park, Saturday, will be made at the regular meeting of Kosciusko Rebekah lodge, tonight.

E. H. Clayton, of the Kosciusko lodge, No. 58, has been appointed chairman of the arrangements committee and will meet with the auxiliary to discuss plans for the picnic tonight, it was announced at the regular meeting of Kosciusko lodge last night.

Delegates from every Odd Fellows lodge in the county are expected to attend the annual celebration. A baseball game will feature the entertainment of the afternoon and a special program is being arranged to be given following the picnic supper.

SUFFERED AFTER EVERY MEAL DUE TO INDIGESTION

Stomach Misery and Kidney Troubles Banished by the New Konjola, Says Marysville Man

The surprising medical compound, Konjola, which The Konjola Man is explaining to crowds of people daily at the Stump Pharmacy, 121 South Main St., Marion, has not only become the sensation of this city, but is also the talk of cities and towns throughout this entire section. For instance, just a few days ago, Mr. A. D. Sherman, for 27 years a contractor of Marion, now living at Route 3, Marysville, Ohio, made the following statement about the remarkable recovery Konjola gave him:

"I had a severe case of stomach trouble about 12 years," said Mr. Sherman. "After every meal I was subject to indigestion and all kinds of miseries. My food would ferment and sour. This brought on spells of gas and bloating which made me short of breath and brought pains around my heart. I had dizzy spells and feelings like I would faint. The condition of my kidneys was just as bad as my stomach. I got up very often at nights, which broke up my rest, and always felt weak and sore across the region of the kidneys.

"I had been hearing of Konjola and what this medicine was doing in Marion. I gave it a trial and I want to tell you that I am feeling like I never had stomach or kidney trouble in my life. The indigestion pains are gone, appetite is increased and I never have gas bloating or heartburn like I suffered before. My kidneys are in the best condition they have been in years. Pains never center in my back any more and I don't have dizzy spells. The night rising is ended and there is a great difference in the way I feel each morning. Konjola has certainly changed my whole condition and made me feel years younger, so I gladly give it my indorsement."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump and Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.—Adv.

Capital Folks Are Experts At Posing for Photographs

Good Face, General Appearance Means Ballots, Camera Men Say

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—A public man's usefulness seems to depend on the kind of photograph he takes.

This was a sarcastic crack I ran across the other day in an article I happened to be reading, commenting on the steady publicity [illegible] appear to set on getting effective-looking pictures of themselves before the voters in their various bailiwicks or throughout the whole country if they have ambitions on a national scale.

And never was a truer thing said in an ironical vein than this was.

THAT the right kind of a mug and general get-up mean ballots to a candidate on election day unquestionably is a theory with the overwhelming mass of expert testimony back of it. It's hardly possible to doubt its correctness, the belief in it is so nearly universal on the part of those who actually have tested it carefully.

A man may not want to resemble an Adonis. If he depends on hick support he may want to look like a hick. If he depends on a labor constituency he may want to look like a working man. But he has an ideal that he wants to be dolled up to whenever a cameraman's around.

Some of these folks are as touchy as any chorus girl. I've seen a congressman borrow his stenographer's vanity bag and powder his nose, to take the shine off, before posing.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE notably knows how to put his best foot foremost. Of course he's had a tremendous amount of practice. He doesn't go in for make-up but he knows all about lighting effects, pose, expression, how to make the most of himself. Frequently he gives useful tips to experienced photographers.

The president quite frankly realizes that he isn't naturally the type to make a very telling picture, but everything that science, art and good management can do to offset his unavoidable disadvantages he attends to, if the camera men neglect it.

MRS. COOLIDGE isn't as particular as her husband. She doesn't need to be, not that she lays any claims to the Miss America style of beauty, but she has good substantial features and about the most attractive smile of any woman who ever lived in the White House.

THE Washington news photographers make a great point these times of getting their victims in character as they express it.

That is, of course, Chief Marvin of

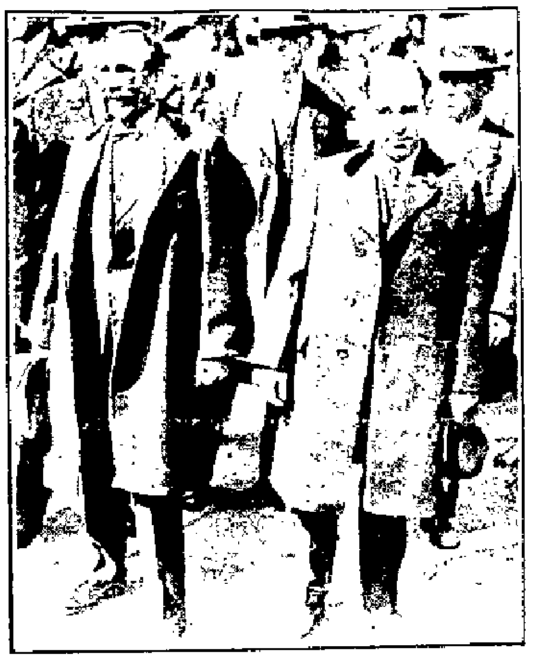
END LIVES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR



Above are shown Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Nicola Sacco, who went to their death in the electric chair at Charlestown Prison shortly after midnight this morning. They were executed for the slaying of a payroll guard at South Braintree, near Boston, April 15, 1920. The photo was snapped as the men were on their way to the prison in which they died.

Three Men Electrocuted In Charlestown Prison Each Meets Death In Own Way

Madeiros Sullen and Indifferent; Sacco, Resolute and Defiant; Vanzetti Dies with Forgiveness for All on His Lips

Boston, Aug. 23—The three men electrocuted in Charlestown Prison early this morning died each in his own way, Sacco with a shout for anarchy, Vanzetti with forgiveness for all on his lips, and Madeiros with an appearance of utter indifference.

Madeiros was the first to go. Phlegmatic and grown indifferent to his fate through long incarceration in the death house, he entered the death chamber at 12:02 a. m. He seemed in a sort of stupor. He came in with a guard on either side, and sat down in the chair quietly. The straps were adjusted quickly and the cap pushed down. The current went on with a whine, and it was quickly over. He never spoke. The first "shot" was of 1,400 volts; the second of 2,000. He was pronounced dead at 12:09.

Scorns Aid

The guards had hardly eaten the rigid form of Madeiros behind the screen and on the marble slab before Sacco was brought in. The shoe maker appeared a little pale, but his head was high and he scorned any assistance from the guards on either side.

Resolute and defiant, he stood in front of the yawning chair, and shouted in his native Italian:

"Long live anarchy!"

Then, in English, he said—

"Farewell, my wife and child, and all my friends."

A slight pause, and then for the first time he seemed cognizant of the dozen witnesses who faced him.

"Good evening, gentlemen," he said.

By this time the guards had urged him quietly down in the chair, and as the deadly cap went over his face, he shouted:

"Farewell mother."

More Current Needed

At a sign from the warden, the switch was thrown and his frail body, emaciated from long hunger strikes, sprang against the restraining bands. Despite his apparently weakened condition, the voltage it took to burn out his life was greater than that required for Madeiros.

The first shock was of 1,800 volts, and the second 2,000. He was pronounced dead at 12:19 a. m.

The guards quickly lifted his small and rigid frame from the gaunt chair and deposited it on a slab alongside that of his predecessor, behind the small partition.

For Vanzetti, the philosophic fish peddler, had been reserved the hardest lot—the last to go. He had paced to and fro in his narrow cell as he had heard the footsteps of his companions echoing softly down the corridor to eternity. To them he had called a soft farewell.

Talks From Chair

"Barto" walked in unassisted and, like his friend, with head held high. He appeared cool and collected, more so than the others. He glanced evenly and steadily at the assemblage that faced him, and seated himself quietly in the chair. As he seated himself he began to speak in even tones. He spoke in English so his hearers could not possibly fail to understand him. He said:

"I wish to tell you that I am innocent, and never committed any crime, but sometimes some sin. I thank you for everything you have done for me. I am innocent of all crimes not only of this one, but of all. I am an innocent man."

The guards by this time were fumbling the straps into the final position. Vanzetti paused as if his speaking might impede their progress. Then he continued: "I wish to forgive some people for what they are now doing for me."

That was all. The black cap was pushed down on his forehead, and he sank back seemingly at rest.

The whine of the current sent his gaunt frame out against the straps. It strained grotesquely as the current continued to sing, as if it would burst the bonds and hurl itself into the faces of the fascinated watchers.

Over in 25 Minutes

I as all over in 25 minutes. Madeiros entered the execution chamber at two minutes past midnight, and it was only 12:27 when the nervous guards lifted the bent frame of Vanzetti from the chair, and laid it gently on the marble slab in back.

Outside purred a motor ambulance, waiting for its burden. Ringed around it were four motorcycles, Springfield rifles showing in the boots, and .45's swinging from the hips of their pilots. Even in death, the law of Massachusetts took no chances upon friends of the two men seizing Sacco and Vanzetti. The bodies were borne out on stretchers and deposited in the ambulance. With a roaring of motorcycle exhausts the cavalcade swung out of the yard, through the high iron gateway, and on to the Northern Mortuary in West Boston, where the official autopsies were performed.

Autopsies Held

These autopsies were the law's last act in the seven years drama. Following their completion, the bodies were turned over to relatives. That of Vanzetti was claimed by his sister, Miss Luigia Vanzetti, who arrived from Italy only a few days ago to see her brother for the last time.

"Barto's" body will be taken back and put to rest in the soil of his native Italy. That of Sacco was claimed by his faithful wife and will be buried near Boston, the scene of his most tragic years. The body of Madeiros was claimed by relatives and will be interred in New Bedford, Mass., where his aged mother and sister reside.

pressed the same opinion as his fellow councilmen, believing it would profit the city to settle with the owner of the property.

A vote found Councilmen Wilkins, Mead, Owens, Goel and Williards in favor of putting the reductions up to the court, while Prettyman and Schmidt voted in favor of sitting with the owner of the property.

The five requests for reductions considered by council last night were filed by Ethel A. Stout, who asked for a reduction of the paving assessment on a lot on Chief-av, Otto Layman, who asked for a cut in the paving assessment for a lot on Darius-st, Hoke Donithen who was seeking a reduction in the paving assessment on a lot on W. Center-st, John Millisor who is seeking a decrease on a lot on Park-st. and Matilda LaVelle, who is asking a reduction in the paving assessment of two lots on E. George-st.

Explains New Law

A new law under which the city is now operating provides, it was explained to council by City Solicitor Goran last night, that property owner, whether he signs the petition for an improvement or not, is not entitled to a reduction unless he files a protest some time during the three weeks the estimated assessment is on file in the office of the city clerk. This law also provides that if enough protests are filed, the project can be abandoned by council.

The reduction of assessments, particularly on street pavings, has been a thorn in the side with members of council for many years and has done much to plunge the city into the heavy debt which it now bears, officials state.

JOURNAL TO BE OUT THURSDAY

Plans for First Issue of New Weekly Paper Are Announced

The first issue of the Marion Journal, a new weekly newspaper to be published in Marion, will appear Thursday, W. H. Fletcher, general manager announced today. The first issue of the Ashley Star and Waldo Herald to be printed in the Journal plant will be published Wednesday. These two newspapers also are under the management of Fletcher.

It is planned to print about 12,000 copies of the first issue of the new weekly and distribute them as sample copies throughout Marion and Marion County. The paper will probably consist of 14 or 16 pages. A. C. Hyde, coming here from Ashley, is editor of the Journal as well as the other two weeklies being printed in the new plant.

Eight-Page Press

The Marion Journal plant, located at 238 W. Center-st, is equipped with a flat bed class printing press, with a capacity of eight pages. One linotype is in use at present and another will be installed soon, Fletcher said today.

The interior of the building in which the plant and office are located has been improved and repainted. The office occupies the front portion with composing room and press room in the rear.

It is planned to issue the Marion Journal each Thursday with the Ashley Star and Waldo Herald appearing Wednesday of each week.

Fletcher and Hyde came here from Ashley, where the Ashly and Waldo newspapers have been published for the last few years. Both papers have been successful under the management of Fletcher.

condemned men, from their attorneys and their friends and to them all he was courteous and adamant.

Governor Fuller's friends said that the reason he remained at his desk was that he would not have it said he "ran away" from any last minute appeals. Some said, too, that the governor anticipated possible personal reprisals from sympathizers with the executed men, and if it came he preferred to meet it where his wife and children would not be subjected to danger. But the trouble failed to materialize. The city was policed down to the last alley, and when the governor left, heavily guarded, he motored to his summer home at Rye Beach, N. H.

Fight to Last

The battle to save the two Italians continued right up to the foot of the chair itself. Throughout the day frantic appeals were made to this judge and that judge for stays, but all in vain. Not a single staying authority was overlooked by the array of lawyers that fought to save Sacco and Vanzetti. Airplanes, motor speed boats and fast automobiles were used to circumvent time and distance, but all proved unavailable.

Only an hour before the executions, final dramatic pleas were made by Mrs. Sacco and Miss Vanzetti to Governor Fuller for mercy. Half an hour before the march to the death chamber began, Attorney Michael A. Musmanno made an ardent plea to the same authority. One minute before midnight, Francis Fisher Kane, another of their attorneys, emerged from the governor's office unsuccessful. Before Kane left the capitol, Madeiros was in the chair.

Demands Interview

Beside himself with grief, Musmanno rushed to the prison and demanded a final interview with the prisoners. Warden Hendry told him it was too late. Musmanno pleaded.

"Tell me," said the warden, "and I will carry the message to them."

"I want to tell them," said the little attorney passionately, "that there is more mercy in their hearts than in the hearts of many who profess the orthodox religion.

"I want to tell them I know of their innocence and all the electric chairs and gallows in the world cannot change that knowledge. I want to tell them they are the two kindliest and tenderest men I ever knew, that they have loved their brother men with a sincerity that has always been apparent."

He would have said more, but the warden stopped him. It was no use. The hour was too close at hand.

Reject Faith

It was about this time that the Rev. Father Murphy, the rotund Catholic chaplain of the prison, gave up the ghost. For months he has labored with the three men, striving to return them to the faith of their fathers and of their childhood. But they would have none of it. He paid three visits to the men during the day, advising them of the church's willingness to sponsor them into what lay beyond the chair. Each time he met with the same indifference. They went out as they had lived—beyond the pale of the church.

Even though the bodies of Sacco and Vanzetti lay stiff and stark on the marble slabs of the Northern Mortuary today, the Boston police force was not demobilized. If anything, it was more alert.

March Planned

Plans are afoot for a gigantic march "in memoriam" through the streets of Boston by sympathizers with the dead men. And there are always the rumors of reprisals. Not for several days at least will the vigilance of Boston's police be relaxed in the slightest.

In a few days, Luigia Vanzetti, elderly sister of Bartolomeo, will place his body aboard an Italian boat and accompany it back to the homeland for interment in his native soil. Her week in America has been a tragic one. She arrived, bewildered and alone, a week ago, unfamiliar with the language or the law of the country that has taken her brother's life.

Sacco's body will be buried near Boston.

Today several Boston papers printed editorials urging that the city "get back to normalcy."

New Dances Are Exhibited Before Master's Convention

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The Lindbergh Glide, a dainty waltz of only take-off and glide, the "Dixie Stomp," a syncopated fox trot with a swing to it, are picked as a strong bid to supplant the "Charleston" and the "Black Bottom" as the popular dances of the coming season.

These new dances, and some others, are being exhibited here at the convention of the Dancing Masters of America. After due consideration the dancing masters will place their official approval on what is to be the dance of the winter season. Other dances under consideration include the "Chicago Prance," the "Parisian Hop," the "Glide" and the "Peabody."

Interpret Flight

One has to be adept to accomplish "The Lindbergh Glide." This was exhibited by Myron G. Ryder, a sleek-haired dancing expert of Boston. He and his partner "took off" slowly [illegible]

Favor "Dixie Stomp"

The "Dixie Stomp" in the opinion of [illegible] dancing masters is a [illegible] as it has syncopation that is a delight to those skilled in the terpsichorean art. This dance was introduced by Thomas Sheehy, of Chicago, and his daughter, Catherine. It was taken from the so-called dancing of negroes in the vicinity of New Orleans and is now making a tremendous hit in Chicago, where it is being shown on the stage by Bobby Tremaine who with Mr. Sheehy, is its other deviser and proposer.

While there are a few dancing masters, including Herman Albers, of St. Louis, who think the waltz is coming back, most of the delegates believe that "peppy" dancing will prevail during the winter season.

Expressing Vigor

"Snappy dancing such as the Charleston is here to stay," said Raymond Bott, of Youngstown, O., president of the association. "America has become a dancing nation, and the young people are stronger and healthier than ever before. They are not content with the waltz. They want something through which they can express the vigor they feel.

"I predict that the coming season's dance will give dance lovers every bit as much exercise as the Charleston."

Which of the two local men snagged the fish was not revealed in the letter.

Section Plays Important Part in Developing Airplane Industry

Washington, Aug. 23.—Proponents of [illegible] of the New England Council, an organization devoted to the industrial and civic betterment of New England states. Lindbergh and Chamberlain have written a new page across the skies. An industrial New England has realized the part that this section is playing in the airplane industry.

A review of the New England contribution to this mode of transportation which has again received added impetus by the flights of Maitland, and Byrd disclosed that eleven firms in this section made parts or material for the Lindbergh plane.

The conquest of the air has aroused New Englanders to the possibilities that the future holds and the slogan of manufacturers here is "to spare no effort to insure that New England industry shall lead in developing this new form of transportation."

The epochal flights of the intrepid American airmen have stirred New England communities to take a livelier interest in the development of flying fields. Also, the erection of a factory for the manufacture of airplane is under way at Laurel Beach, Conn.

A new landing field for planes has just been opened at North Grafton, Mass., near Worchester. Plans for a landing field at Concord, N. H., have been completed with provision for hangars to accommodate a large group of planes. In Manchester, N. H., a movement is under way to have a field built there.

At Portland, Me., a point 400 miles nearer Europe than New York public sentiment is crystalizing in favor of a municipal field. Bridgeport, Conn., is also contemplating the building of an airport.

JUDGE'S SENSE OF HUMOR AIDS COUPLES

Judge Kennedy Discards Theory of Advice and Preaching, Especially for Young

Boston, Aug. 23.—Dr. George H. M. Kennedy, of the Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court, likes to preside in divorce cases. And he likes them particularly when young people are involved.

Many young couples find their matrimonial ships on the rocks when a little diplomatic guidance would bring them through safely, he points out. And what these young people need, according to Judge Kennedy, is not a lot of advice and preaching, but a little prodding of the sense of humor.

And he conducts his court in accordance with this theory. He "kids" the lawyers, the contestants, and the witnesses. The spectators say it's better than a vaudeville show. Usually he terminates a case with a little talk, similar to this:

"I won't grant this divorce today—in fact, I'll feel sorry to grant it at all. I like you both and would hate to separate you. Remember, marriage is a give and take proposition. Each side must have patience.

"Now, young fellow—buy your wife a box of candy and take her to a good show. When you get home tonight talk things over and see if you can't forget this. Come back next week and tell me your decision. That's all. Next case."

"It's the best way to handle divorce cases," Judge Kennedy declares.

It becomes melancholy when one stays up late every night because long ago he used to have a good time when he did.

BUY A USED CAR IN AUGUST

The best time of the year to buy an automobile. The NEW 1928 cars are in. They are attractive. They invite and bring in many "trade ins" of slightly used cars, whose owners trade them as an exchange on the latest models. Many people do this yearly and, as a result, the good, smart used car buyer picks up at a "used car" price a practically NEW car. Of course, dealers must clear their floors now of all cars on hand, to make room for this influx of "trade ins." That's your good luck.

Prices on Used Cars are low. Down payments and terms are especially attractive. A "good shopper" gets a "good bargain."

Tonight take your Star, pencil, or shears, turn and shop from the classification Used Cars in the Want Ad section. Make your selection and tomorrow see and buy. Over 70 good Used Car "buys" a night are offered in the Star.

The "Hinderland" Vindicated

A recently made survey indicates that there long has been an erroneous impression regarding the make-up of the support which is given New York City stage productions. It long has been thought and again and again has been stated in type that the theaters of our metropolis received their chief support from the provinces as some New Yorkers are inclined to refer to other parts of our country in imitation of Londoners from Marion and Xenia Kokomo and Kalamazoo and a thousand and one cities and towns north east west and south. And frankly the thought has ever been an embarrassing one to us

Happily the survey to which we have made reference shows that seventy five per cent of the patrons of New York City theaters are residents of Greater New York and that fifteen per cent come from comparatively nearby cities and towns. If these figures are trustworthy and they are offered as reliable it will have a tendency to relieve from embarrassment the country as a whole outside New York City and vicinity. It will take from it the odium of the possession of the degraded taste which has been attributed to its people. Since but a small percentage of the patrons of New York theaters are from the hinderland—another favorite term applied by New York amusement writers to the territory west of the Hudson and south of New York bay—the "hinderland" is freed from responsibility for the many vile and often lewd plays which have disgraced the stage in New York in recent years. We outside New York City need no longer feel ashamed. We can not be too grateful for the figures which remove the stigma which has rested upon us for years

Nervous Paralysis and Causes.

BY ROYAL S COPELAND M D

An Ohio lady asks for an article on nervous paralysis. I am not quite sure just what it is she wants. There are many forms of paralysis all of them involving one or more nerves

Suppose we review briefly our knowledge of the nervous system. There will still be space to speak of some forms of paralysis

Chief of the organs [illegible] and commander of the nervous system is the brain. Next [illegible] in importance is the spinal cord the great nerve structure [illegible] of the [illegible]

From the brain are given off twelve pairs of nerves called the cranial nerves. Some of these are called special nerves because they govern the special senses. There are the olfactory or smelling nerve, the optic or seeing nerve, the auditory or hearing nerve etc

Then there are thirty-one pairs of nerves branching out of the spinal cord. These are called spinal nerves. Through this arrangement every part of the body is reached. Each one of the [illegible] nerves is like a telephone or telegraph system. Messages can be sent from the body to the spinal cord and from the cord to the remote portions of the anatomy

For instance in its various branches and subdivisions there is a nerve running from the spinal cord to the index finger. This nerve has a dual function. One is devoted to sensation. If a flaming match touches the finger a message is sent to the central office. From this centre a message is sent back ordering the finger to move away from the heat. The first function is called sensory, the other motor

Of course there are many other details involved in the construction and functions of the nervous system. But this is enough information for our present purpose

Paralysis of a nerve may do two things—it may destroy both sensation and motion in a part of the body, or the paralysis may destroy the motor part of the nerve and motion will be lost, or the sensory part alone may be destroyed with loss of sensation in a part as a consequence

So you see we may meet motor paralysis [illegible] sensory paralysis, or if the whole nerve is cut [illegible] or pressed upon both motor and sensory paralysis may result. That is why the term [illegible] paralysis used by the Ohio lady who wrote [illegible] is too indefinite to describe what she has in mind

Falling from an automobile we learn that there may be such an injury to the spine as to [illegible] bleeding in the cord. The blood clot may press upon the base of one of the spinal nerves. In such a case there will be paralysis probably [illegible] both in the region supplied by the [illegible] nerves involved

A man past middle life may have an attack of apoplexy. That is there is bleeding in some portion of the brain. The nerve centers [illegible] are involved that one whole side of [illegible] is paralyzed

There may be a fall followed by [illegible] of a nerve say the facial nerve [illegible] side of the face [illegible]

CHEERS FOR THE CONSTABLE

In Windsor Constable [illegible] arrested a Detroit man on a charge of disorderly conduct because the man sounded the horn of his automobile too long and too loudly at a street crossing where the red traffic signal was set against him

There are two breeds of horn tooters. One sort gets in his work in traffic jams, the other specializes in curb signaling. Both species are well known to any fun-[illegible] American community

Views of Those in Public Eye

HILARY P JONES

Hilary Pollard Jones born in Virginia on November 14 1863 was graduated from the United States Naval academy at Annapolis [illegible] in 1884. He became an ensign in 1886 and rose through the grades to rear admiral. He served on the Brooklyn during the Spanish American war. He had command of the Scorpion the Birmingham the Tennessee and the Rhode Island. During 1914 and 1915 he commanded the navy yard and was superintendent of the navy gun factory at Washington. At the outbreak of the military emergency with Germany in 1917 he was put in command of an Atlantic squadron. He was made director of naval overseas transportation in 1919. He became vice admiral commanding the second battleship squadron Atlantic fleet in that year commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet in 1921 and commander in chief of the United States navy from December 1922 to August 1923. He was appointed to the general board in 1923. His permanent residence is at Doswell Virginia

Admiral Jones recently urged a big commercial fleet for the United States saying

We of the American delegation to the Geneva conference on the limitation of naval armament have come back without any agreement as is generally known

We hope this means a conservative building up of the United States navy to its proper position

What we need now is an adequate commercial fleet which would act as an arm to our navy. We need a fleet to take our goods to foreign countries and to return with foreign goods thus serving as our own carrying trade unit

The American delegates were happy to receive the Rock of Gibraltar support from their government back home

I think Great Britain merely stood by what they considered was for their best national interests. There is a certain degree of justice in what they thought necessary for the protection of their bread line. But there should be a distinction drawn between Great Britain's bread line and their far flung lines of commercial communication

In a talk I had with Admiral Fields of Great Britain he stressed the necessity of England maintaining its bread line and said that in the hour of need England could exist only a few months with the food supplies on hand. I replied that it was more than a bread line—that it was also their commercial line

New York Day by Day.

BY O O McINTYRE

New York Aug 23—These are [illegible] the gay creatures of the [illegible] known as chorus girls [illegible] for them has been [illegible] the Rialto [illegible] They were [illegible] choruses in town [illegible]

Only two cabarets had a [illegible] And [illegible] singing [illegible] who [illegible] Chorus [illegible] with [illegible] engaged [illegible] was [illegible]

A girl who leaves the [illegible] in New York this [illegible] The [illegible] theatrical agencies in Times Square have more than a dozen applicants [illegible]

Scores already have moved from [illegible] hall rooms—and [illegible] vanished. A [illegible] manager [illegible] reports more than [illegible] chorus girls working as [illegible] Others have become manicure and [illegible] girls

But those who cling to the forlorn hope that rare optimism of their calling are in desperate plight. It is no exaggeration [illegible] are without necessary food and [illegible] Headlines recently have told of a number [illegible] ing on gas or searing lips with acid

The chorus girl who is handing [illegible] the [illegible] is a target for ready dinner [illegible] and the Johns who go [illegible] buy [illegible] jobless girl finds herself completely out of [illegible] picture. Her halo is made by the [illegible] tinsel. Without them she is often a [illegible] place as the mold on a pat of butter

Most of them are improvident. They [illegible] not put it in the bank and consequently [illegible] unprepared for rough weather. The [illegible] have had apartments in the [illegible] Seventies but so bleak is the outlook [illegible] even hard hearted landlords have [illegible] many leases

Under the canopy of a west Forty-Fourth street theater as the audience was departing the other evening three blind men a few feet apart came along tapping the sidewalk with canes. The play happened to be one in which a man suddenly blinded played a tragic role and a shower of coin fell into each cup

Speaking of chorus girls one wonders where they select those airy names. Among the few now playing are Ann Hendricks, Thelle Hamilton, Peg Basil, Loolita Waters, Hedda Ritch, Carlindy Abby, Deever Haines and Sonia Wright. There is an unbeatable collection of first names! And Glad's Glad is quite a famous and beautiful show girl

Wardrobe mistresses in theaters play a sympathetic part in the lives of the chorus girl. Many were of the chorus in opulent days and they know by bitter experience the value of thrift. The chorus girl in trouble and away from her parents usually turns to the wardrobe women for advice and consolation

Many successful girls of the chorus adopt mothers. They are kindly gray haired ladies often old character actresses in need of [illegible] and in exchange for a place to live they look after the fluttering birdlings and [illegible] to protect them from worldly dangers

The Stage Door Inn is a cooperative enterprise in midtown providing positions to unemployed chorus girls as waitresses. The [illegible] permitted in order of application to work [illegible] for a few weeks between engagements

A theatrical agency manager contrary to popular impression says most girls who fail in chorus girl jobs and are out of employment for long periods return to their homes. The popular idea is that they take a short cut to the does.—Copyright 1927

LEMON LEAVES

Plant the lemon seeds and treat them as house plants. They grow into pretty shrubs, whose leaves may be used for flavoring. A few leaves tied in a cloth and put into the applesauce for a few minutes gives it a delightful flavor. One or two placed in the bottom of the pan before pouring in the loaf cake batter will give a delicate flavor to the cake.

LEFTOVER ROAST

Shred the veal left over from Sunday roast. Heat one can of corn seasoned with butter, salt and pepper. Place in baking dish in the following order: Cracker crumbs, corn, meat and cracker crumbs on top. Mix juice of meat with corn before putting it in to make it moist. Bake three-quarters of an hour.

Almost Forgotten Grave Holds Tragedy Relic of Royal Romance

The tiny grave in Trenton, N. J., churchyard, where Joseph Bonaparte's daughter is buried. Above, "Bow Hill," the brick mansion in which the exiled king of Spain established his Quaker sweetheart.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 23 — More than two centuries ago St. Michael's Episcopal church was founded in Trenton, N. J. Inevitably the years have surrounded the once restful spot with business premises. Warehouses crowd it, stores environ it, and the peaceful atmosphere of its tiny churchyard is violated by the ceaseless roar of traffic.

By the north wall, surrounded by an iron fence, a weather-worn marble monument, surmounted by a dove carved from the same stone, marks the last resting place of a king's daughter. Of the thousands of tourists and other curious visitors who visit the historic old church, few give the inconspicuous tombstone more than a passing glance, yet here is buried the baby girl whose father was Joseph Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon, the Corsican, at one time by virtue of his imperial relationship, King of Spain.

Not Built for a King

There was, the histories tell us, little of his brother's genius for power about Joseph Bonaparte. He was not a strong man. A judge, or an ambassador he might have been, but his stomach for adventure was weak. Napoleon made him first King of Naples, then as his dictatorship spread over Europe, ruler of Spain. When the bubble of Napoleon's might was exploded at Waterloo, Joseph fled to the United States, and in 1818 he established himself at Bordentown, N. J.

Annette Savage was the daughter of a Philadelphia Quakeress who kept a little notion store. Joseph Napoleon, on a visit to the Pennsylvania city stepped in the tiny shop to purchase, according to tradition, so unromantic an article as a pair of suspenders. The impressionable Frenchman's heart was smitten by the little Quaker girl's demure beauty. His queen, Marie Julie Clary, he had left behind in Europe, for her health was regarded as too delicate to sustain the strenuous ordeal of an ocean voyage of those times.

He was in his mind at least, still a king. He paid imperious court to the little Philadelphia girl. She was swept off her feet. He took her to his home on the Delaware, and showered luxuries upon her. Staid, moral, Philadelphia was shocked, and Joseph Bonaparte was made to understand that his action was considered inexcusable. Then, enraged, he moved to Trenton, leased a great brick mansion called "Bow Hill," and there established his Annette.

The couple lived a life of seclusion, yet there is evidence that the little girl who had conquered a king's heart was not unhappy. The inscription "God is Love," scratched on a window pane at Bow Hill with a diamond, is still decipherable, evidence of Annette's simple contentment.

Two children were born of this unsanctioned union. Pauline Josephine was the eldest, the second daughter was Charlotte. The household was happy, but tragedy impended. While she was romping with her sister and her mother in the grounds at Bow Hill one day, little Pauline Josephine overturned a marble vase mounted on a high, insecure pedestal. The heavy urn struck her on the head, and she died almost instantly.

This is the reason for the little grave in St. Michael's churchyard, and the simple inscription which marks the last earthly resting place of a king's daughter.

"Erected by a Bereft Mother, to the Memory of a Beloved Child, Pauline Josephine Holton, who Departed This Life, Dec. 6, 1823, Aged 4 years."

Schuyler is [illegible] with anger, then it occurs [illegible] she may be [illegible] tries to retrieve [illegible] for Vera has seen [illegible] time. She orders him to the [illegible] nearest [illegible] are stopped by a car [illegible] masked men.

Now Go On With the Story

"I've never been in a holdup before," she beamed. "I am sorry I am wearing no jewels."

CHAPTER XXIX

MASKED man sprang up on the [illegible] the running boards of the [illegible] er Schuyler Smythe had [illegible] elopement with the girl he be[illegible] she Vivian Crandall. In the [illegible] their eyes [illegible] were [illegible] the holes in their black mask[illegible] does this mean?" Schuyler quavered. "A holdup?" His [illegible] uttered on the words [illegible] up as eight [illegible] crouching over Schuyler shortly. "Give me the keys [illegible] —and make it snappy!" [illegible] "We're not going to hurt ye [illegible] as you're told."

[illegible] felt more like laughing than [illegible] as she obediently climbed [illegible] the roadster.

[illegible] "never been in a holdup be[illegible]" she beamed. "It is [illegible] and I am only sorry that [illegible] wearing no jewels with which [illegible] my entertainment. These jade [illegible] are worth not more than [illegible]"

"I don't," snapped the man who [illegible] guard over Schuyler. "You can cut the comedy [illegible] I run along so that car of ours [illegible] monkey business either. You [illegible]

[illegible] He bought [illegible] her [illegible] smile [illegible] "Are you a doctor?" she asked.

[illegible] "I much prefer bandits to detectives [illegible] think it will be wise [illegible] take off your masks? If a passing car flashes its headlights at you you'll be in rather a nasty situation unless you can convince the occupants that you are protecting yourselves against infectious germs. You know," she added in a cheerful conversational voice, "I've always believed [illegible] masks only [illegible] It's a pleasure to find [illegible] I'm wrong. I never expected [illegible] perfect day."

[illegible] the man beside her laughed [illegible]

Vee-Vee laughed [illegible] as she studied the face which the dim light [illegible] her revealed with the removal of his mask. In the faint light it was hard to distinguish his features clearly, but she saw that he had a face as round as a [illegible] with [illegible] eyes [illegible] teeth [illegible] eyebrows. [illegible]

[illegible] the suggested New York [illegible]

[illegible]

"Are you kidnaping me?" she shrilled.

"How did you guess it?" the man beside her [illegible]

[illegible]

It [illegible] to her [illegible] this was [illegible] the Crandall heiress. With the [illegible] of Vivian Crandall's [illegible] and of the [illegible] unsuccessful [illegible] private detectives [illegible] were looking for her there was [illegible] vintage of the situation. But [illegible] had they known [illegible] she [illegible] the letter which she had found under her door early that evening, demanding a hundred dollars for silence. She had not paid the blackmail, and now she was being kidnaped! Of course they would hold her for ransom—

"Who do we think you are?" the driver flung at her contemptuously. "Lady, we know who you are. W[illegible] was riding under the [illegible] we sure got [illegible] thought you'd never break [illegible] but you played right in our hand. Your sheik steals a car [illegible] with you and we simply another to follow you in.

"Me and my pardner here feel awful bad 'cause we [illegible] on the moonfaced man [illegible] we was going [illegible] riding in the evening with a princess—"

"I'm not a princess. I never have been a princess," Vee-Vee cried out, leaning forward to shake the shoulder of the driver of the car. She recognized that he was the leader.

"Sit down and keep quiet! How am I going to keep my mind on my business with you howling in my ear?" the driver snarled at her.

"I tell you I'm not Vivian Crandall, if that is who you think I am!" Vee-Vee protested shrilly. "Please let me out!"

"Say, lady, do you think we pulled this stunt before we was sure of the lay of the land? We had a picture of you and a complete description. You fit it to the last detail, and we just been telling you we heard you talking to that sheik of yours on the pier tonight. No, lady, pipe down and be nice! Ain't no use pulling that gag on us! We know our onions!"

She saw then that it was quite useless to try to convince them. No one would believe her, no one had believed her from the first. She lay back against the cushions of the stolen sedan—she had recognized it as belonging to Mrs. Fosdick, a fact which seemed faintly ironic to her, though she could not have said why—and closed her tired eyes.

"Don't cry, lady," the moon-faced man urged with rough kindness. "We ain't going to hurt you. All right, pardner. This is the lane where we turn in. Or shall we leave the car here?"

"Leave it here, I guess," the driver grunted as he killed the engine. "All right, step lively, miss. Ever been up in a sky buggy? But I guess an airplane ain't no novelty to you. Bring that bag with you, pardner," he called to the moon-faced man.

"An airplane?" Vee-Vee echoed. Then, curiously, a little thrill of anticipation fluttered in her heart. She had always wanted to ride in an airplane, but she had never dreamed that the experience would come to her in this bizarre fashion.

In the meantime, Schuyler Smythe gets back to the Minnetonka, where an alarm has been raised over Vee-Vee's disappearance. Read the next chapter.

Serves Suffering Humanity

There is something else in life than just making money, and that is serving humanity.

TRULY MARVELOUS

It is said that scientists and suffering humanity have for centuries searched the [illegible] earth and seas for magnetism in a practical form to heal human ills. Prof. Otto Warburg, the great German scientist, recently demonstrated his wonderful discovery before the Rockefeller Institute.

SYKODONER A MAGNETIC HEALTH RESTORER

The Sykodoner, an invention based on the above discovery, is now being demonstrated to the people of Marion and vicinity, for the first time. So great has been the calls, that many had to be placed on the waiting list.

FREE

Call, write, or phone 3067, for appointment. Free demonstration of its most remarkable phenomena, and opportunity to take free treatment, to all who apply at once. This in order to more quickly show all chronic sufferers, what the Sykodoner system can do for them. There will be no cost or obligation for this.

[illegible]

Among the many Marion people who are now using the Sykodoner with such marvelous effect, is one well-known Marion lady, who suffered for years, with neuritis, rheumatism, and kindred ailments; and she had been unable to use her arms, or do her own housework any longer. Now, after but a few treatments with the Sykodoner, she is very loud in her praises; so is also her husband, who can now hear his watch tick, first time in many years. And his painful foot has not troubled him since the very first treatment. It gets at the cause of disease.

Are you not just as good as others? And why will it not do equally as much for you? You will not be asked to buy it, but only to try it. Why suffer any longer?
